

STRIPED ADOBE-LILY (FRITILLARIA STRIATA)

Federal/California status: --/Threatened
California Native Plant Society List 1B

It grows in open, annual grasslands on heavy clay soils bordering blue oak woodlands. The plant occurs in eastern Tulare and Kern counties.

Photo: © Rosalie Faubion

Photos

Striped adobe lily is a member of the lily family ( Liliaceae ) and grows from a bulb. The plant is a slender perennial about one foot tall. The bell shaped, fragrant flowers are white to pink with burgundy stripes, and appear in late February or early March.

